

About MacIntyre Who We Are

MacIntyre is a charity.

MacIntyre supports people with learning disabilities and autistic people

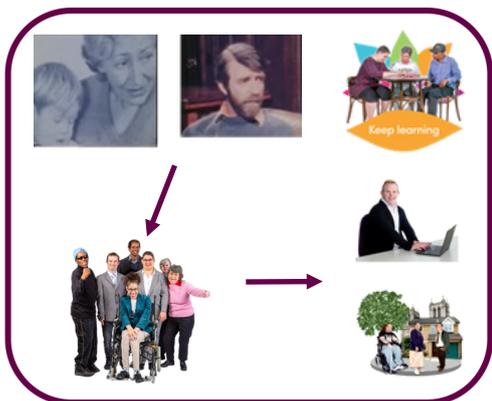

MacIntyre has been supporting people with learning disabilities and autistic people since 1966.

MacIntyre started in 1966 because the Newton Wright family were told that their son would stay in hospital for the rest of his life because he had a learning disability.

The parents wanted more for their son.

The parents believed that every person can learn and give something back.

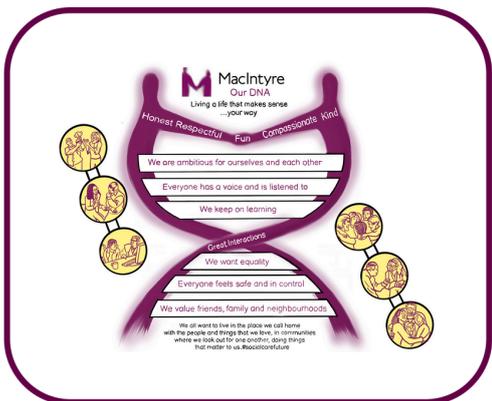

This is part of MacIntyre's DNA.

You can watch the MacIntyre DNA song here:
